Granite City firefighters battled a general alarm fire Monday night that destroyed the Jack and Jill's Furniture building on the corner of Niedringhaus and Delmar. Although the cause of the fire is as yet unknown, firefighters believe the fire smoldered for several hours before an unknown event created a backdraft, which caused an explosion.

Cause of blaze is still unknown

Little remains of Jack and Jill's Furniture store at the corner of Niedringhaus and Delmar except rubble and twisted metal. Fire destroyed the Granite City landmark late Monday night. The actual cause is as yet unknown, but on Wednesday morning, the federal bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms was poking around the remains. The Granite City police and fire departments requested the federal bureau's presence, said Maj. Kip Pomeroy. "They have a crackerjack team," Pomeroy said, and that team includes cause and origin specialists, arson specialists and specially-trained dogs. They joined the police and fire departments' own arson and cause and origin specialists in the investigation. "We have to rule out what can't be the cause before we can say what was the cause," Pomeroy said. The Granite City Fire Department responded to the fire at about 8:50 p.m. Monday night. When the first fire truck arrived, flames had already enveloped the building. Assistant Fire Chief Jim Brawley speculated Tuesday morning that materials smoldered for several hours before an unknown event caused a backdraft and subsequent explosion.

Voter turnout high

Fitzgerald carries county

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

A cold rain failed to deter voters Tuesday. Despite the weather, a total of 74,465 voters — 44 percent — turned out in Madison County to cast ballots for a variety of federal, state and local races.

In the race for U.S. Senate, Republican challenger Pete Fitzgerald ousted incumbent Carol Moseley-Braun. Fitzgerald was able to capitalize on Moseley-Braun's numerous controversies in her one term as U.S. Senator, as well as a negative perception against her by many voters downstate and in the Metro East. Fitzgerald ran strong in heavily Democratic Madison County, winning 59 percent of the vote in unofficial results.

In other statewide results, Secretary of State George Ryan defeated U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard to maintain the Republican Party's hold on the governor's office, which it has held since 1974.

Poshard — who had strong support in the Metro East area — had trailed in polls throughout the race. He defeated Ryan in Madison County, but his downstate margin of victory was not enough to offset Ryan's support in and around Chicago.

While some late polls showed Poshard was slipping, he did manage to pull to within a few percentage points of Ryan, who had the advantage of massive name recognition because of his office.

In other races for state offices, incumbents Attorney General Jim Ryan and Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka held on to their positions, while Democrats Jesse White and Dan Hynes were elected secretary of state and comptroller.

Ryan easily defeated Chicago City

Treasurer Miriam Santos, and Topinka held against challenger Daniel J. McLaughlin.

In the comptroller's race, Hynes defeated former Chris Lausen to fill the position of Leola Didrickson, who lost the primary race for U.S. Senate to Fitzgerald.

For a nonpresidential year, Madison County Clerk Mark Von Nida said the 44 percent voter turnout was "heavy."

"It pretty much matches up with what we had four years ago — it exceeded it slightly," he said. "There

Costello celebrates win

Local issues called keys

By Scott Kelly
Staff writer

Celebrating his election to a sixth term in Congress, Democrat Jerry Costello cited his emphasis on local issues and accomplishments as keys to his victory Tuesday over Republican Bill Price.

"I don't think there's any question voters have been turned off by negative campaigns and personal attacks," Costello said at a victory party Tuesday night at Panorama Lanes in Belleville. "I think what they did in this election was respond to my record of accomplishment and my positions on the important issues that affect their families."

Costello (D-Belleville) easily defeated Price in the sprawling 12th District, which stretches from Alton to Cairo.

The final, unofficial tally showed Costello winning with about 60 percent of the vote.

Celebrating 45 years of service

Protestant Welfare's Care Center will hold annual banquet Saturday

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

The Community Care Center of Protestant Welfare will celebrate 45 years of service in the Tri-City area at its annual banquet scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Saturday at AMVETS Post 204, 1711 Kennedy Dr. in Madison. The doors open at 5 p.m. Music will be provided by members of the Granite City Community Band, Jeff and Lori and Tom Wilkerson. Vocalists will be Vicki J. Royce and Margaret MacZuar. The master of ceremonies will be U.S. Marine Corps Sgt. Nicholas P. McLaren. McLaren, a 1991 graduate of Granite City High School, is currently the marketing and public affairs representative assigned to the Marine Corps Recruiting Station, Salt Lake City.

The cost for the banquet is $12.50 per person. Tickets are available at mercer and Community Affairs Director Norm Sims as exemplifying the spirit of the awards. "For more than 45 years, the non-profit Community Care Center of Protestant Welfare has provided food, clothing, medical equipment and other living necessities to less fortunate individuals and families," Sims said. Protestant Welfare allowed the JTPA summer youth program to use a warehouse expansion project as a pre-apprenticeship program, providing training to young people seeking careers as painters or carpenters.

"With the help of the AFL-CIO, five teens spent their summer vacation learning carpentry and painting skills," Sims said. "They enthusiastically transformed a warehouse originally described as a 'wreck' into what they now call 'a work of art.'"

That "work of art" is needed to provide more and more programs, said Protestant Welfare Board President Denise Wright.

She said there appears to be more need than ever, in part because of the threat of layoffs in the steel industry and because of the "welfare-to-work" programs.

"When we moved here six years ago, somebody wanted to know why we needed 25,000 square feet," she said, laughing.

Democrats continue solidly in control of County Board

By Scott Kelly
Staff writer

The Madison County Board remained solidly in Democratic hands after Tuesday's elections. Republicans managed to pick up one seat, the District 1 seat formerly held by Harold Byers. Republican Judy Kuhn defeated Joseph G. Geiger 1,852 to 1,410 and became the second woman on the County Board, joining Pat Polley of District 16.

The Board now stands at 26 seats controlled by Democrats and three by Republicans. Locally, Alan Crider of Granite City defeated with Jackie Monroe nearly defeating Democrat incumbent Ed Voumard. County Board Chairman Rudy Papa's District 14 race went down to the last of seven precincts, but Papa, the Democrat, defeated Republican challenger Byron Sherry of Cottage Hills by a vote of 1,050 to 694. Sherry blamed low voter turnout.

"I don't feel I was defeated by Rudy Papa," he said. "I was defeated by the 50 percent of the voters that did not turn out."

Papa could not be reached for comment. Steve Stobbs of Godfrey won, keeping District 6 in Republican hands. He defeated Democrat Frank Myers 1,643 to 1,328.

In District 15, Wayne Bridgewater of Roxana easily defeated Madison County Republican Chairman Jim Mihalich of Rosewood Heights. In District 8, Michael "Doc" Holliday defeated Republican Gerald "Jerry" Sewell 1,083 to 764.

is a tradition of voting in Madison County that is something to be proud of."

He added that because of the Motor Voter Act, which makes it easier to register to vote, the total number of potential voters has increased while the numbers of those actually voting remains constant.

County election results were tallied by about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday evening.

"It was really a fairly smooth election," Von Nida said. "There were a few minor little glitches; there were people who had their precincts changed over the summer, so there was some confusion."

He said the old Granite City Precinct 5 was combined with Granite City Precinct 7.

The new precinct cards reflected their new polling place, but old habits are hard to break," Von Nida said.

He added that the elimination of single party voting didn't seem to create any problems at the polling places.

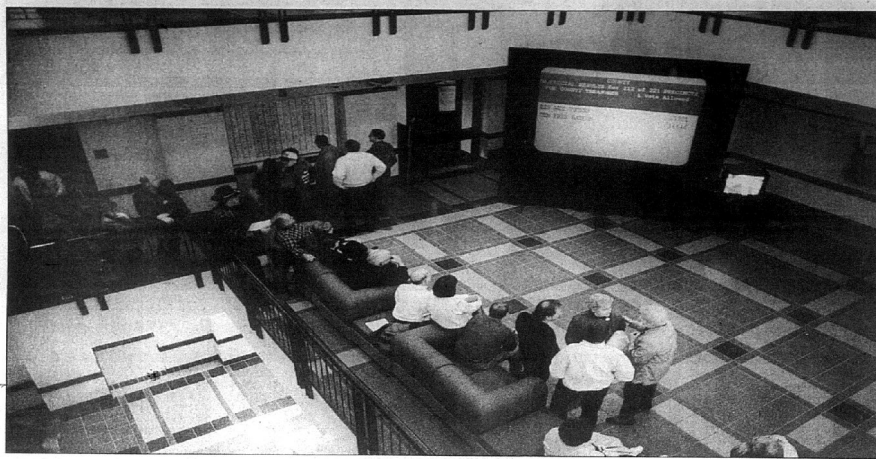

"I'm real happy that we brought in the additional booths to make sure there were not any lines," he said.

Madison County voters split their support between the two parties.

Support for Fitzgerald was very strong in Madison County, where he picked up 59 percent of the vote, 41,958 to 27,813. For governor, Poshard was favored over George Ryan 52 percent to 47 percent.

In the race for attorney general, Jim Ryan won Madison County 55 percent to 43 percent over Santos. For secretary of state, the office vacated by George Ryan to run for governor, Madison County voters narrowly preferred Salvi over White, 49 percent to 49 percent.

In the comptroller's race, Hynes received 55 percent of the county vote, and county residents favored McLaughlin for treasurer, giving him 53 percent.

Poll watchers wait for early results at the Madison County Courthouse Tuesday night.

Bathon wins treasurer race

Republicans lose all three contested countywide races

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Madison County Republicans lost what little presence they had in countywide elected offices as Democratic candidates swept three contested races.

In the hottest race, incumbent Madison County Auditor Fred Bathon will be switching offices after easily winning the vote for Madison County Treasurer.

Bathon — who has served 10 years as auditor — beat Chief Deputy Treasurer Wes Tucker 38,897 to 31,384, in what was the closest countywide race.

Bathon will take over for Republican Bill Aery, who was appointed to fill the treasurer post when John Shimkus was elected to Congress in 1996. "I feel very good," Bathon said Wednesday morning. "Obviously it's a very humbling and gratifying feeling."

He will assume the duties of treasurer on Dec. 1.

Bathon said there appeared to be some confusion on that because the Madison County Board reorganized on Dec. 7.

Bathon also said that both Tucker and Aery had called him "within the last 20 minutes" and assured him they would give Bathon whatever assistance was necessary during the transition.

Tucker had remained optimistic until the final tally, which came at about 11:30 p.m.

"I thought the campaign went well," he said Tuesday night.

He also said the party did well in the face of a traditionally strong Democratic party.

"The Republicans have made some inroads; they (Democrats) haven't run away with it like they did in the past," he said. "We've made some strides, and we'll make some in the next two years."

In other contested countywide races, incumbent County Clerk Mark Von Nida easily beat Republican challenger Nancy Moss 41,538 to 29,649, and incumbent Sheriff Bob Church defeated Republican challenger Bob Hulme by a wide margin — 45,116 to 29,354.

Madison County Regional Superintendent of Schools Harry Briggs Jr. was unopposed.

Shimkus rolls to victory over Verticchio

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Supporters of U.S. Rep. John Shimkus didn't have to wait long Tuesday to hear their candidate claim his 20th District seat for the second time.

Within minutes of entering the American Legion in Collinsville, Shimkus strode to a podium at the front of the Oak Room, action, which silenced a waiting crowd. A board to his right kept track of results in the 19-county area. The 20th District covers and marked Shimkus' progress against Democratic challenger Rick Verticchio, a Gillespie attorney.

In unofficial totals, Shimkus drew 121,103 votes to defeat Verticchio's 76,475.

"We're declaring victory now," Shimkus said shortly after 10:30 p.m., an announcement that filled the room with wild applause.

The time element was one of the key differences between this race and its predecessor two years ago. In that race, against State Rep. Jay Hoffman, D-Collinsville, returns came in slowly and neither candidate would concede until the wee hours of the morning.

Shimkus eventually eked out a victory.

"It's not 3 a.m.," Shimkus quipped. "One of my goals was to make sure this was not a 3 a.m. campaign."

Another difference, Shimkus said, is that for this race he had a Congressional record.

"In 1996, the vote was based on what my ideals were," Shimkus said. "This time, they looked at my job performance and they said, 'We approve.'"

"I'm pleased with the effort of our campaign," Verticchio said. "I just wish we had more votes."

Verticchio ran an aggressive campaign, criticizing Shimkus strongly in a series of appearances around the district. He tried to portray Shimkus as a follower of U.S. House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Georgia, who was more interested in promoting the agenda of the national Republican Party than representing the interests of 20th District residents.

Verticchio also criticized Shimkus for accepting campaign contributions from the tobacco and managed health-care industries, then voting against legislation that would have placed stricter controls on tobacco and reformed the nation's health-care system.

Shimkus seldom responded to Verticchio's jabs, saying he preferred to run on his record. He stressed that he was part of a bipartisan effort in Congress to balance the budget and save Medicare.

"I'm pleased we were able to stay on our issues," Shimkus said. "We let (Verticchio) do his thing and I did mine. It was a campaign my supporters can be proud of."

Costello talked up his accomplishments at campaign stops, such as helping balance the budget, bringing home transportation dollars for such projects as MetroLink and the Clark and McKinley bridges, and helping to open MidAmerica Airport.

Price mainly ran as the rightful inheritor of father Mel Price's legacy, and lobbied critics at his opponent, primarily over the latter's past ties to fallen lawyer Emil Cuetto and what Price considered Costello's lack of action on transportation and education issues.

Madison seeks new mining proposals

Previous attempt found no bidders

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

At least one company has expressed interest in mining sand and gravel on property owned by the city of Madison.

At Tuesday's meeting, the City Council approved seeking new bid proposals on mining operations on the "North Borrow" property north of the Millam Landfill. Proposals will be opened at 3 p.m. Dec. 14.

The city had previously sought a developer for the project, but none had applied. At the time, consultant Glenn O'Bryan said the city's minimum royalty requirement may have been set too high.

In the newest proposals, no minimum bid had been set.

As part of his agreement with the city, O'Bryan prepared requests for proposals to develop the property and will oversee any mining operations.

The city has been considering the plan for approximately two years. The land, a 19-acre parcel known as the North Borrow property north of the landfill, was originally given to the city by Waste Management Inc.

The city and the company recently reached an agreement allowing the company to take sand, gravel and dirt out of the property for use at the two landfills, but city officials said it may be more cost-effective for them to buy the materials from another company.

The council had approved a contract with O'Bryan in early August, but there were no responses to their request to submit proposals.

Under the original agreement, the mining agreement would run for 20 years. During that time, the company winning the contract would pay the city a minimum of $25,000 in royalties per year.

Those royalties would be based on a payment of 13 cents per ton or 7 percent of the gross sales of minerals from the property. O'Bryan's payment would be 13 cents per ton or 3 percent of the gross sales.

When the mining operation is completed, the property would revert back to city use.

New probation office opens in East Alton

By Darryl Howlett
Staff writer

Probation officers celebrated the formal grand opening of the county's probation and court services satellite corrections center in East Alton.

The center is on the second floor of the Vital Services Building, which also houses the police and fire departments.

The center opened Aug. 4. It has 11 probation officers working at the site, including three juvenile officers. It's the second satellite center; the first was opened in Madison. Officials hope the center will benefit East Alton and Madison County.

"The police, mayor and county have made the transition as smoothly as you can ever want," said Darrell McGibany, director of Probation and Court Services for Madison County.

"Local officials and the county have been very supportive of this community probation service. This has gone smoothly for the center. We anticipate a long, productive relationship."

The county's probation service still has several offices at the Madison County Administration Building.

Officers from other departments as well as the public were given tours of the center.

Linda Van Dyke, chief probation officer for the center, agreed with McGibany's assessment of the center.

"It's gone really well. We've had great cooperation from the county and East Alton. Officers seem to really like being closer to their cases. It's working real well."

Madison County State's Attorney William Haine said his department would continue to work closely with the probation department.

•Fire

A backdraft describes a fire that smolders without actually bursting into flames. It spreads until it runs out of oxygen, and all the while builds up intense heat, Brawley said. A smoldering fire can break through a wall or break a window.

Once a smoldering fire suddenly gets a new source of oxygen, the high temperature and burning embers in the air would have an explosive effect.

"A superheated building will even start to expand like it's breathing," Brawley said.

"First it blows out, then sucks the air back in, then explodes."

Several nearby buildings suffered damage from the intense heat. Units in the adjoining apartment building suffered water damage and possible roof damage from a wall falling on it.

No injuries were reported. Firefighters from the Melvin Price Support Base assisted in extinguishing the fire.

Jack and Jill's had been a fixture on the corner of Delmar and Niedringhaus for years, and the building itself for much longer. It sold children's and second-hand clothes as well as furniture.

Lawyers spar in Sims case

By Dennis Grubaugh
Staff writer

Prosecutors seeking to keep convicted child murderer Paula Sims in prison are turning toward an unusual source for help — her former defense attorney.

Lawyers from the State's Attorney's Office and the Public Defender's Office sparred last week over whether an attorney-client privilege still exists between Sims and lawyer Don Groshong of Alton, who represented her in her 1990 murder trial and subsequent appeal.

Sims, who was not present Wednesday, has been wanting her conviction reversed since 1994, claiming she was ineffectively represented by Groshong.

Sims, 39, is in Dwight Correctional Center, serving a life term for the 1989 slaying of her 6-week-old daughter, Loralei. She was convicted in 1990.

She also pleaded guilty in 1989 to obstruction of justice and concealment of a homicide in the 1986 death of her 13-day-old daughter, Loralei.

In 1994, she filed the petition seeking a new trial or a sentence rehearing. Circuit Judge John DeLaurenti granted a prosecution motion to dismiss the petition that same year, but the Illinois 5th District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon overturned the decision in June 1997, saying the Public Defender's Office hadn't properly handled her case.

An amended petition has been filed.

The State's Attorney's Office maintains the only way it can determine if Sims was ineffectively represented is to interview Groshong in detail about the case, and so far he hasn't been willing. Assistant State's Attorney Rich Rybak said.

"Mr. Groshong feels he is constrained by the attorney-client privilege and has refused to discuss any aspect of the case," Rybak said.

Groshong couldn't be reached for comment.

Citing legal precedent, Rybak told DeLaurenti Wednesday that the attorney-client privilege no longer exists once a client has claimed ineffective counsel.

But Madison County Public Defender John Rekowski, whose office now represents Sims, argued against waiving the privilege. He said the state is on a "fishing expedition" for evidence that could be used at a retrial, if one is ordered.

The existence of privilege belongs to the client, not the attorney, Rekowski said, "and we're not waiving it."

She said she was ineffectively represented. She shouldn't be victimized twice by having her former attorney's prior confidences splashed upon the public record," Rekowski said.

Rybak responded: "So I should come into court with my hands tied behind my back, with no means of exploring the truthfulness of the allegations?"

Neil Hawkins, assistant public defender, noted that the state's attorney's next move will be to dismiss Sims' petition for a new trial, which would render the attorney-client issue moot.

DeLaurenti held off on ruling on the privilege question for at least two weeks, when Rybak is supposed to file his response to Wednesday's proceedings. DeLaurenti said he would be willing to reopen the privilege issue as proceedings edge closer to a retrial, if prosecutors deem it necessary.

Collinsville righted ship for strong state bid

The comeback fell just a little short for the Collinsville Kahoks soccer team on a cold and wet Tuesday night in Springfield.

Desired to go down as one of the worst soccer teams in school history when they struggled with a 1-7-1 record, the Kahoks made another run at a state appearance for coach Ron Rowden. East Moline finally took care of the Kahoks' improbable dream, scoring in the last 7 minutes 9 seconds to nip Collinsville 1-0 in the IHSAA Class AA Springfield Super-Sectional at Lee Stadium on the south side of Springfield.

Rowden warned everyone Collinsville would make another run for a state appearance, even when his team was struggling. The Kahoks came on strong, but yet were rightfully seeded only No. 5 in the Collinsville Sectional. The door was open to the Kahoks when they beat No. 4 seed Edwardsville while Alton upset No. 1 seed Granite City. The Kahoks polished off Alton in the semifinals before squeaking out a penalty kick victory against Belleville East. Collinsville converted three of four penalty kicks to only one for the second-seeded Panthers. That victory gave Collinsville the sectional championship and brought up memories of 1996 when the unheralded team finished second in the state tournament. The Kahoks were the lowest-seeded team to win a sectional this season in either IHSAA Class AA or Class A.

Just one more step. Just one more step to another trip to state, which would have been Collinsville's fifth in the 1990s. But that last step was hard to take on a slippery field Tuesday night. Luck was not with the Kahoks. After a scoreless first half, Collinsville had a golden chance midway through the second half when sophomore Lee Zarzecki made a hard charge to the goal and was tripped a step inside the box. But the official ruled otherwise. The Kahoks weren't given the penalty kick.

Moments later, luck again wasn't on Collinsville's side when it seemingly scored off a corner-kick play. After taking a short pass off the corner kick, Kit Gaither shot on goal for what seemed to be a goal after slipping through goalie Greg Bailey's hands. However, Gaither's shot was ruled a no-goal when, after huddling with the linesman, the middle official said the ball was knocked into the goal by a Kahoks player's hand. The Kahoks argued otherwise, saying the ball was already across the goal line when the Collinsville player touched the ball.

East Moline took advantage of the breaks when Dennis King scored from about 20 yards out off a beautifully placed dead ball, curling the ball inside the left post on a shot that Kahoks goalie Josh Shiver could only watch.

No state appearance this time. However, the Kahoks could be very proud of the way they righted their season. They finished with a respectable 10-10-2 season, posting a 3-3-1 record after the horrible start.

"We started to turn things around with the Alton win (2-0)," Collinsville tri-captain Sean Gregory said. "We felt we could make a run during the playoffs."

Late-season victories against Triad and Belleville East gave Collinsville confidence heading into the playoffs.

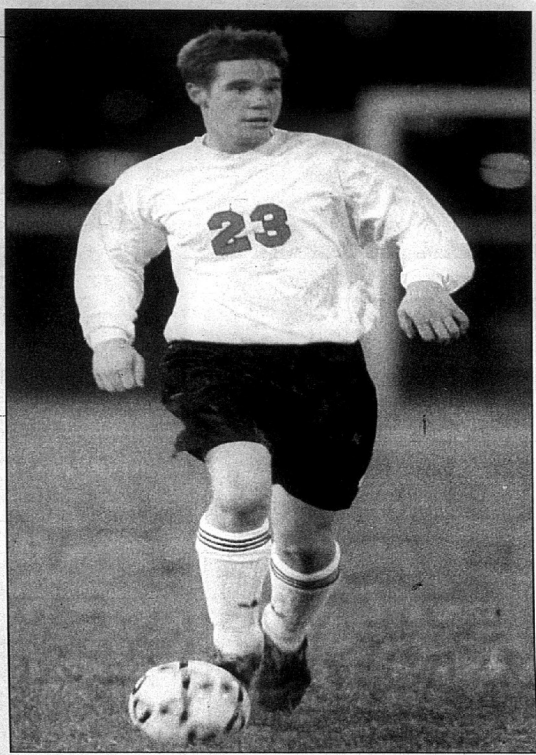

"We just didn't have it early," said Gregory, who could have added that the Kahoks had it going late. Although it wasn't the result they wanted against East Moline, the Kahoks should be proud that they never quit and pulled together — seemingly, as usual — to make another run to the state finals.

Just like Collinsville in the super-sectional, Triad did not have luck going its way when it lost to Carbon Dale 2-0 in the IHSAA Class A Triad Sectional final on Saturday.

Both of Carbondale's goals were of an unusual variety. The first came about 45 yards out on a shot that carried in the air all the way into the goal. There was no wind to help the ball, but it managed to find its way into the goal in the upper right-hand corner. The second goal came off a hard shot into the box that ricocheted off a Triad defender and found its way into the right side of the goal.

So, for a Triad team that many considered a Class A state contender

Warriors could count on strength of bench

BOYS SOCCER

One of the strengths for the Granite City soccer team this fall during its Southwestern Conference championship season was the players on the sidelines.

Granite City coach Gene Baker had great success when he turned to the bench to summon the likes of Ian Kessel, Brad Hutchings for Steve Hendrickson to rest the starters or provide a spark when the starters were ineffective.

"Our job was to follow the game plan, get the job done and execute," Hendrickson said. "I just tried to set an example to guys who get in the game later on to work hard."

Most dramatically, in the game they clinched the conference title, the Warriors called on Dustin Rosenberg, and he made the most of his opportunity. Within seconds of entering the game, Rosenberg notched the Warriors' second goal to seal the victory.

Younger players got the chance to gain some varsity experience. Midway through the season, when five players were out on suspension, bench players saw more regular shifts. And Neil Loftus, Nathan Gaudreault and Richie Edwards came up from junior varsity to lend a hand in the Hazelwood Central Tournament. Loftus continued to play out the season with the varsity, including a long stretch in the final against Alton.

Baker will look for the payoff next year, when the younger kids are expected to step in for the departed seniors.

goal, lifting the Panthers to a 1-0 victory against the Kahoks.

In the eyes and hearts of the Kahoks faithful, it will be remembered as the game that was literally taken away from them.

Collinsville (10-10-2) had what would have been the first goal of the game at 57:43, but officials disallowed the goal.

That disallowed goal came off a corner kick opportunity. Collinsville senior Kit Gaither received a short give-and-go pass and floated a high

Breakers capture Halloween meet

Hayes, Rhodes pace victorious team

YOUTH SWIMMING

It was a new verse of the same song for the Edwardsville YMCA Breakers swim team last weekend when nearly 400 swimmers converged on Edwardsville for the annual Breakers Halloween Swim Meet on Oct. 24.

The Breakers won their eighth straight team championship, easily outdistancing the field. The Breakers — who feature young swimmers from Edwardsville, Alton, Collinsville, Granite City, Troy, Highland and Hillsboro — scoring a whopping 872½ points, easily topping second-place Centralia, which had 663 points. Belleville was third with 322½ points, followed by St. Charles (Mo.) 222, Kirkwood-Webster Groves (Mo.) 155½, West St. Louis County 120½, Hannibal (Mo.) 113, Jefferson City (Mo.) 110½, Tri-City (Alton) 83, Hazelwood (Mo.) 64½ and South (St. Louis) County 42.

"Our point total was about where I thought it would be," Breakers coach Bob Rettle said.

It gives us a good indication of where we stack up against the rest of the teams in our (St. Louis) district."

As it turned out, all the teams entered in this year's meet were the same teams the Breakers will have to beat if they want to defend their five-time St. Louis YMCA District championship. The district meet will be in February in Centralia.

The Breakers got strong performances up and down their lineup, especially from the 13-14-year-old girls and the 13-14-year-old boys, as well as strong individual efforts.

The 13-14 girls were led by Lauren Blair, Kristen Frakes, Tara Frey, Tara Slape, Kara Sanders and Keisha Williams. The 13-14 boys were paced by Aaron Tremper, Justin Schooley, Matt Duman, David Simpson and David Meyer. Beth Rhodes, in 15-18 girls, captured first place in the 200 individual medley, 400 individual medley, 100 butterfly, 100 backstroke and 50 butterfly, as well as teaming up for first in the medley relay and 200 freestyle relay.

Ashley Hayes, in 11-12 girls, captured first-place finishes in the 50 butterfly, 200 IM, 100 butterfly, 100 backstroke, 100 freestyle and 50 backstroke.

Overall, 14-year-old Danielle Horack of St. Charles (Mo.) was high-point winner for girls with 54 points. Rhodes, 17, and Hayes, 12, of Collinsville, were second and third respectively. Rhodes amassed 47 points and Hayes had 47 points. Lauren Blair, 13, of the Breakers was fifth overall with 41 points.

In boys overall point standings, Ryan Julian of Hazelwood (Mo.) was first with 56 points. David Meyer of the Breakers was sixth with 36.

"Everyone came through with strong performances," Rettle said. "We lost a lot of experienced swimmers in the 15-18 boys group last year, who graduated out."

"But we have a good group of younger 15-18 boys who we think will be ready to make a move by the time the district meet rolls around."

A total of 380 swimmers, as well as their families, converged on the Edwardsville YMCA for the annual meet, which is the major fundraiser for the swim club each season.

"We put everybody to work," Rettle said.

Parent volunteers worked as timers, starters, stroke judges, runners and concession stand workers. "It takes a lot of people to put on a meet of this size," Rettle said.

Visiting that toddlin' town...Chicago

Multi-generational program takes two-day field trip

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

As field trips go, it was a doozy. A total of 43 students, teachers and parents in Madison School District's multi-generational program went to Chicago in early October, getting a chance to visit a number of museums and other sites.

The Chicago trip was the big finale for the program, which included trips to the Black Repertory Theater, Meremac Caverns and Lambert-St. Louis International Airport via MetroLink. "I think it was very positive," said program coordinator Yvonne Ward. "I tried to link a lot of the things we did with the Illinois state goals. We had the curriculum as well as giving the children extended learning opportunities."

The multi-generational program was funded by a grant from the Illinois State Board of Education and was part of the district's efforts to improve test scores.

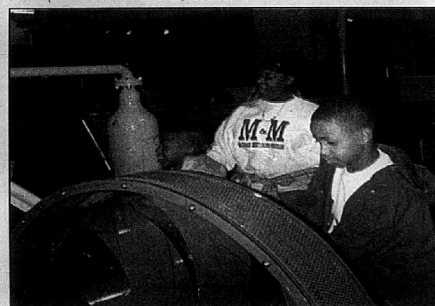

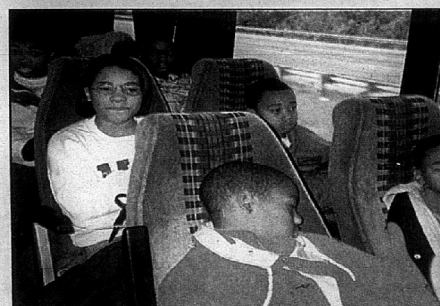

The main component of the program was having high school students working with the younger children as mentors.

The group left early on Oct. 9.

"We chartered a bus and left Blair School at 7 a.m.," she said. "We took a total of 43 people."

TOP PIC: Students, teachers and parents in Madison School District's multi-generational program recently took a two-day field trip to Chicago.

Golden Agers, Saturn Car Club hold recent meetings

The Golden Agers group met Oct. 15 at the Granite City Salvation Army chapel for its monthly meeting.

President Dorothy Castleman was in charge of the program.

Vera Lynn led the group in prayer, and Bud and Deloris Scatturo led the singing.

It was reported that Jean Small, who attends regularly and is blind, fell and broke her hip. Earl Spalding gave three readings. "Touched by the Master's Hand," "Memories of the Old Home Place" and a humorous reading of "Jonah and the Whale." Dorothy Castleman gave a reading of a "Recipe for Happiness," noting one does not need two eyes of vision to be happy.

The guest speaker, Ron

Maxine Green

Joyce, minister of music at Grace Baptist Church, had been scheduled but was taken to the hospital for surgery and had been in a coma for 23 days.

Ellie Knight told how she became blind, leaving the thought that God's gift to you is life, and what you do with it is your gift to God. She has been blind and is successful in learning of read Braille. She also has become a successful bowler.

At first, she had 89 balls go into the channel and had knocked down three pins. However, she recently rolled a 99. Bob Knight, her husband, is her assistant.

October birthdays celebrated were Carrie Miller, Amy Toney and Myra Robie. A total of 41 people enjoyed the potluck dinner.

The group meets on the third Thursday of each month and welcomes new members. Call 451-7959 for more information.

On Oct. 25, the youth department of Pontoon Baptist Church hosted a wiener roast for the congregation and visitors. More than 80 people attended.

Everyone enjoyed bobbing for apples and a pumpkin-eating contest. There was also terrific food: hot dogs, chili, hot chocolate, cider, coffee and smores. The weather was beautiful, and the fest was great. The youth department and the youth director, Toni Bickel, did a terrific job.

Saturn Car Club members enjoyed their third Fall Foliage Run Oct. 25.

Leaving the Saturn of North County location, the caravan of 12 cars traveled north on U.S. 367 to Alton. A mystery stop was made in Alton at the Robert Wadlow statue.

They continued north on the Great River Road, past Elsau and Grafton to Hardin, where they had reservations for lunch at the Barefoot Inn. After lunch, the caravan crossed the bridge at Hardin and continued south to Pere Marquette State Park, where they enjoyed the view and some of the activities that were happening. The caravan then disbanded, and the members chose different routes home and visited other interesting places.

Avon representatives of District 5019 held a Campaign 24 sales meeting at the Avon offices on Edison Avenue with manager Phyllis Laster in charge.

All-new products were on display and discussed. Plans also were made for upcoming campaigns.

Tommie Myers, Debbie McElroy and Carol Gilland reached the President's Club goal and were presented with Mrs. Albee figurines.

Fifty-fifty drawings were also held. Prizes went to Irene Davis, Tommie Myers, Dorothy Lawrence, Sandra Orasco and Eileen Yobby.

Out on a limb, the early Oscar pick is ...

'Pleasantville,' 'Private Ryan' are called top contenders

First, the disclaimers: True, it's only November. True, the prestigious critic organizations and industry wags have yet to add their influential voices.

True, some of the holiday movies have yet to hit the lab. But if the studios can get into the Academy Award spirit already, why can't we?

Here, then, are the early, early Oscar picks — shamelessly premature and admittedly subjective, but in their own way as pure as can be, untainted by the studio hype machines, which are just now firing up.

Going out on a long and precarious limb, the film to beat so far is "Pleasantville," out this weekend and a warmhearted antidote to another contender — the brutal "Saving Private Ryan."

Written and directed by Gary Ross, who wrote the screenplays for "Big" and "Dave," "Pleasantville" seems to have the best shots at picture, director and lead actress for Joan Allen.

The strongest category for "Saving Private Ryan" is supporting actor, with Tom Sizemore as the front-runner, while Ian McKellen is the early pick for lead actor for either "Apt Pupil" or "Gods and Monsters." Strong buzz also surrounds Kimberly Elise, who portrays Oprah Winfrey's daughter in "Beloved," for supporting actress.

Of course, all this is subject to change as the final wave of films comes out, including "The Thin Red Line," "A Civil Action," "Stepmom" and "Meet Joe Black." All are highly anticipated; all are big question marks.

There's also the impact of the studio spin operations. Art house studios are already advertising Academy Award-consideration screenings. The full-throttle promotions are just weeks away. Nominations will be announced Feb. 9 and the awards presented March 21.

That said, here are the early picks:

BEST PICTURE: It may come down to guts or goodness, the gritty "Saving Private Ryan" or the life-affirming "Pleasantville."

Academy voters do love their epics — "Titanic," "Dances With Wolves," "Braveheart," "The English Patient," among them — and Steven Spielberg's World War II drama has the requisite sweep. The question is whether voters will be turned off by the gore and the fact that Spielberg already won for "Schindler's List."

If so, that tips the balance to the inventive, optimistic "Pleasantville," the story of a black-and-white 1950s-era TV town that turns to color when a pair of worldly teens from the 1990s arrive. Its only shortcoming is that it may be too, well, pleasant, pulling story punches.

The wild card is Italy's "Life Is Beautiful," a favorite on the festival circuit, but Miramax Films may decide to enter it in the foreign language category.

Farther behind: "The Truman Show," "Beloved," "Elizabeth" and "One True Thing."

Question Marks: "A Civil Action," "The Thin Red Line" and "Stepmom."

Possible surprise: the delightful comedy "Waking Ned Devine," which could get "The Full Monty" nod. Early pick: "Pleasantville," color it a winner.

BEST ACTOR: British actor McKellen is drawing raves as the former Nazi in "Apt Pupil" and as the dying movie director in "Gods and Monsters." But he could cancel himself out and Tom Hanks will march off with another statue, this time for "Saving Private Ryan" and his portrayal of the frightened leader of a squad that has survived D-Day and has been given the unwanted mission of tracking down a missing soldier to tell him he's going home.

Close behind: Edward Norton for "American History X," Geoffrey Rush for "Elizabeth" and Ian Bannen and David Kelly from "Waking Ned Devine."

Question marks: Nick Nolte for "Affliction" and John Travolta for "A Civil Action."

Big question mark: Jim Carrey for "The Truman Show."

Possible surprises: Dylan Baker for "Happiness" and Saul Williams for "Slam."

Early pick: McKellen, for giving evil a good name.

BEST ACTRESS: Allen, the TV mom in "Pleasantville" who experiences things June Cleaver could never even imagine, appears primed to receive the Oscar she was denied as a supporting actress for "Nixon" and "The Crucible." But perennial Oscar favorite Meryl Streep can't be ruled out for her portrayal of a dying mother in "One True Thing" or "Dancing at Lughnasa." Nor can her "One True Thing" co-star, Renee Zellweger, unless Universal Pictures enters one of them in the supporting category. Indeed, Allen also could be considered a supporting actress.

Close behind: Cate Blanchett for "Elizabeth" and Ally Sheedy for "High Art."

Question mark: Gwyneth Paltrow in "Shakespeare in Love."

Possible surprises: Jane Horrocks of "Little Voice" and Christina Ricci for "The Opposite of Sex."

Early pick: Allen. It is time.

SUPPORTING ACTOR: Pick any soldier from "Saving Private Ryan" and you have the front-runner for supporting actor, though two stand out:

'Fools' at Summerstage

Neil Simon play will be presented this weekend

Once upon a time there was a little village in Russia where all the people were stupid.

"Fools" by famed playwright Neil Simon is that village's story.

The play will take the stage at Summerstage this weekend.

Summerstage, a Granite City-based thespian group, has members from all over the Metro East.

When a schoolmaster (John Buxton) arrives in Kulyenchikov to break the curse of ignorance, all sorts of things happen, especially when the schoolmaster falls in love with a pupil (Alicia Skirball).

Other leading roles are played by Richard Skirball, Nora Foster, Scott Laird, Jack Moenster, David Cook, Richard Skirball Jr., Lydia King and Ann Scott.

"Fools" is directed by Beverley Scroggins. Performances are at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

For tickets or more information, call 451-1032.

Summerstage is located at 2906 Pershing in Granite City.

On the cover

Members of the cast of "Fools" rehearse a scene for this weekend's performance at Summerstage in Granite City. From left are Richard Skirball Sr., who portrays Dr. Zubritsky; Alicia Skirball (seated) who plays Sofia; Scott Laird (kneeling) as Count Gregor; Richard Skirball Jr. (center) as Magistrate; Ann Scott as Mushkova; and David Cook as Slovtich.

Chorale performance today

Acclaimed SIUE choir will be at GCHS, Marshall School

The Concert Chorale of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, an internationally-known university choir, will perform today at Granite City High School and Marshall Elementary School.

The performances, scheduled for 9:05 a.m. in the high school auditorium and 10:30 a.m. at Marshall, are part of the Concert Chorale tour, under the direction of SIUE music professor Leonard Van Camp. The chorale, founded in 1963 by Van Camp, is made up of SIUE students. Singers who have performed with the group throughout the past four decades have traveled worldwide and have won several competitions.

This fall's repertoire includes works by J.S. Bach, Johannes Brahms, Jacob Handl, Orlando di Lasso and Emma Lou Diemer. The choir will also sing Russian folk melodies, classical motets and anthems and folk music from other parts of the world.

This year's tour also takes the singers to Columbia, Greenville, Edwardsville, Litchfield, St. Joseph and Springfield.

•Movies

Sizemore as the levelheaded sergeant and Jeremy Davies as his cowardly charge. Close behind: Danny Glover in "Beloved," William H. Macy in "Pleasantville," Ed Harris in "The Truman Show" and Donald Sutherland in "Without Limits."

Question marks: "The Thin Red Line" cast.

Possible surprise: Kris Kristofferson in "A Soldier's Daughter Never Cries."

Won't win, but should be nominated anyway: Don Knotts, who plays a Don Knotts With Attitude — you hear him swear — in "Pleasantville."

Early pick: Sizemore, for holding together the squad — and the movie's limp middle.

SUPPORTING ACTRESS: It may come down to a "Beloved" battle between Elise, as the daughter who rises above the pain, and Beah Richards, for the preacher Baby Suggs.

Close behind: Laura Linney in "The Truman Show," Charlize Theron in "Celebrity," Leelee Sobieski in "A Soldier's Daughter" and Scarlett Johansson for "The Horse Whisperer."

Possible surprise: Drew Barrymore for the

If-Marisa-Tomei-Can-Win-So-Should-She nod for "Home Fries."

Early pick: Elise, for making those three hours worth it.

DIRECTING: "Pleasantville" writer-director Ross has come up with the best use of color since Dorothy found Oz nearly 60 years ago.

That this former Clinton speechwriter manages to maintain his sense of optimism and innocence in Hollywood is itself worthy of an award.

Close behind: Spielberg for "Ryan," Peter Weir for "The Truman Show," Roberto Benigni for "Life Is Beautiful" and Jonathan Demme for "Beloved."

Question mark: Terrence Malick for "The Thin Red Line."

Possible surprise: Carl Franklin for "One True Thing."

Possible huge surprise: Todd Solondz for "Happiness."

Early pick: Ross.

'Greatest Show on Earth' opens

Ringling Bros. circus continues through Sunday at Kiel Center

The 127th edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus is under way at the Kiel Center.

"The Greatest Show on Earth" opened Wednesday. Eight more performances are scheduled through Sunday.

The performance schedule for the circus is: 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. today; 7:30 p.m. Friday; 11:30 a.m., 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday; 1 and 5 p.m. Sunday.

All those holding tickets are invited to come one hour before the performance to experience the "Three Ring Adventure." Visitors will be able to step inside the three rings, swing on a trapeze, walk a low wire and try on costumes. The guides for this odyssey are the performers themselves.

Tickets are $27.50 (VIP-Ringside), $17.50 and $12.50. Tickets are available at the Kiel Center Box Office, all Capital Tickets locations or by calling DIALTIX at 989-8000. For group sales information call 622-5454, for disabled access information, call 622-5420. For more information, call 622-KIEL.

Performers for this year's circus include:

- Clown of Clowns David Larible, a multi-talented entertainer who won the Silver Clown Award and the Junior Jury's Award at the Monte Carlo Circus Festival in 1988. He is the first clown ever to be a featured performer with Ringling Bros.

- Zusha, Queen of the Nile, a performing hippopotamus from the Moscow State Circus.

- Mark Oliver Gebel, son of renowned animal trainer Gunther Gebel-Williams, was the youngest person, at age 20, ever to assume responsibility for the Ringling Bros. menagerie. Today he shares the spotlight with liberty horses, Bengal tigers, zebra, camels and a herd of elephants.

• The Golden Pyramid — four body builders and sport gymnasts from Hungary — make their Ringling Bros. debut. The team transform themselves into golden statues to create a presentation of balancing bravado. Another human balancing act will be performed by Moroccan Amine Goutabi and partners Ahmed Be Ali Lamarti and Mohamed Larbi Ben Aboura.

• The Oxygen Skate Team, in-line skate talents, will execute high-flying flips and twists on a raceway of elevated ramps.

• Two talented troupes of The Flying Caballeros will debut their cross trapeze act. The seven siblings from Mexico share the same airspace in an arresting display of aerial acrobatics.

• Luis Garcia and Jennifer Crompton will debut their rollerskating routine, rotating rapidly on an elevated platform only six feet in circumference.

'American History X' is painful

Movie provides insight into humanity

Take a deep breath before sitting down to watch "American History X."

REVIEW

It's violent. It's harrowing and it's painful. It's also an incredible exploration into inhumanity — and, ultimately, humanity.

Director Tony Kaye was apparently so displeased with the final edit of "American History X" that he applied to have his name withdrawn from the credits. What a shame. This is a memorable, significant movie with which Kaye should be proud to be associated.

Edward Norton plays Derek Vinyard, the son of a fallen firefighter who struggles through late adolescence by turning to the neo-Nazi movement. With a charismatic way with words and a swastika tattooed on his muscle-ripped chest, he has become something of a teen idol among a budding urban white-hate crowd.

His younger brother, Danny (Edward Furlong), needs a new role model, and Derek is right there. Danny idolizes him, and when Derek is sent to prison for brutally killing a young black man who tries to steal his car, Danny takes up the supremacist mantle. His patron is the same man who guided Derek — Cameron (Stacy Keach), an aging, virulent white-power leader who lives vicariously through the movement's younger participants.

Sweeney (Avery Brooks), the intense principal of Danny's high school, has seen Derek slip away and wants desperately to save Danny. But his task is difficult.

Beyond this, there is actually very little "plot," strictly speaking, to "American History X." It is, instead, an engaging series of forward-moving tableaux, alternating between the present Danny's perspective — and black-and-white flashbacks of Derek's time in prison and his slow journey away from hate.

The film's biggest strengths lie in its individual scenes. A game of basketball becomes a street referendum on race. The

Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

If you hear someone being referred to as "Barney Fife," you have a pretty good idea of what the subject's personality is like.

TRIVIA Barney Fife, of course, was the bumbling, overconfident deputy played by Don Knotts on "The Andy Griffith Show."

People invoke the name "Barney Fife" to describe any authority figure who displeases them, from police officers and security guards to ballpark ushers. A typical statement using the name would be, "We were just shooting bottle rockets in the alley when Barney Fife had to come up and ruin everything."

Many characters from television, movies and books have become pop culture symbols for certain personality traits.

Another character often used to describe someone is June Cleaver, from the TV show "Leave It to Beaver." June Cleaver was the 1950s television mom who vacuumed while dressed as if she were going to the theater.

You generally bring up this name when your mother hasn't fixed her hair and is washing the dishes while dressed in a sweatshirt.

Numerous cartoon characters serve the purpose of cultural reference shorthand.

Mickey Mouse has come to mean something underwhelming, as in the phrase a "Mickey Mouse operation."

•Trivia

A Pinocchio is a liar. A Bullwinkle is a big oaf. The names Moe, Larry and Curly immediately bring to mind a trio of imbeciles. From literature, a Holden Caulfield is a description of an angry young man. My Grandpa Carbery, now deceased, used to call me "Jethro" because of my eating habits.

If you ever watched "The Beverly Hillbillies," you would realize this is not a compliment. It could also mean a dumb ox, which as far as I know, Grandpa may also have been implying.

For this week's quiz, the topic is fictional characters that have come to be used to describe people.

1. This character, who is accurately used to describe a bigot, lived at 704 Hauser St. Who is it?

2. Name the character created by author Vladimir Nabokov who is used to describe a sexy young girl.

3. Foghorn Leghorn is a cartoon character used to describe a blowhard. What kind of creature is Foghorn Leghorn?

4. Which "Happy Days" character is used to describe a self-confident guy?

5. What is the name of the cannibal in "Silence of the Lambs"?

6. Name the "Green Acres" regular known for being a huckster.

7. Bratty kids are often compared to what comic book character who also has been depicted on TV and in movies?

8. A clever cop is often compared to what literary figure who lives at 221B Baker St.?

9. Someone chasing a pipe dream can be compared to what character created by author Miguel de Cervantes?

10. What "Cheers" character can be used to describe a loudmouth know-it-all?

ANSWERS: 1. Archie Bunker. 2. Lolita. 3. A rooster. 4. Fonzie, because he's cool. 5. Hannibal Lector. His name is often brought up when bad food is served and someone will say that even Hannibal Lector would not eat it. 6. Mr. Haney, one of my all-time favorite characters. 7. Dennis the Menace. 8. Sherlock Holmes. 9. Don Quixote. 10. Cliff Clavin. People have used this character to refer to me a time or two.

Kevin Carbery can be heard as a regular on "The Trivia Coast-To-Coast Show" from 8 to 11 p.m. Sundays on KMOX Radio (1120 AM).

ENTERTAINMENT

HOROSCOPE

Thursday, Nov. 5

The moon's entrance into Gemini creates an energizing aspect to both Mercury and Pluto, which are stationed in Sagittarius. Gemini's influence over the moon lifts every one's spirits and increases the overall level of excitement. Have a positive outlook at work today, and your communication skills may move a joint project to new heights.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Though sharing your creativity with someone important may make you feel shy, a collaboration is just what's needed to bring you to this person's heart. For excellent job prospects, stay in touch with former colleagues.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Make a decision while options remain wide open. A reunion with an old friend leads to romance. Consider volunteering for a non-profit organization. Resist the lure of a shopping trip while funds are low.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Facts must be faced — what you think may be difficult will be a breeze once you step up to the plate. Family members deserve more attention. Indulge in flirtation this afternoon, and you end up with a full weekend of dating.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). What you imagine often and in fine detail will come true by the end of the month. A lovers' quarrel brings a greater level of understanding. A travel opportunity presents itself through family members.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). A display of creative talent impresses a potential employer. Detours lead to beautiful surprises. Daydreams help your financial situation if you have the guts to act on your ideas. Follow directions to the letter.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 5). Bold choices this year have you sailing through obstacles. Love during the holidays brings business connections, regardless of whether or not you are thinking about your career. Not knowing your next move is a positive place to be in February, when you'll simply need to gather more information. Leo or Pisces companions have a tremendously positive impact on your prosperity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Refuse to let up for a minute; your energy and determination enable you to see a project through. Spend as much time as it takes to find the ideal gift. A Taurus shows

This has been a good year for old-fashioned filmmaking. "Titanic" was a modern version of the old Cecil B. DeMille extravaganzas, "The Spanish Prisoner" could easily have been a lost film of Hitchcock, and now "The Impostors," an unapologetic return to the farces and screwball comedies of the 1930's.

While the film does not approach the quality of "Bringing Up Baby" or the Marx Brothers (or even the Ritz Brothers, for that matter), it is an entertaining, unpretentiously silly farce, and a lot of fun for anyone in the right mood.

Anyone fortunate enough to have seen Stanley Tucci's sweet film "Big Night" will be pleased to see him back as the writer/director/star of this film. But while that film was a more subtle, tender story, this farce starts out broad and just gets wilder as it goes on.

It's not a straight-ahead reproduction of the Marx Brothers, as the little-known and underappreciated 1992 comedy "Brain Donors," but it is in the same vein.

Tucci co-stars with that reliable character actor, Oliver Platt ("Flatliners,"

Oliver Platt and Stanley Tucci in the Fox Searchlight Pictures release, "The Impostors."

"Bulworth," "Dangerous Beauty"). The movie's first, best scene shows Tucci and Platt sitting in an outdoor cafe, at different tables. Perhaps the first 15 minutes of the movie are silent, as Tucci and Platt pass the sugar, annoy each other with cigar smoke, flirt with the same woman.

The growing argument between them — entirely communicated by their movements and expressions — grows more heated, until the two pull out knives and grapple in a fight to the death. Finally, to the horror of the bystanders, one kills the other and runs off.

Yes, it is a comedy, and no, don't worry. Tucci and Platt, are two actors who have been reduced by starvation to being con men, and this their free meal. But the two fail even at being good con men — they ransacking of a Korean grocery, videotaped with glee by one of the participants, is unforgettable in its casual hatred. And when Danny and Derek remove Nazi paraphernalia from their bedroom walls, the silent scene speaks more than any dialogue could.

Norton is a master of switching personalities. He's alternately menacing and benign, depending on the scene — flashback or present. Up until now, the only real glimpse we've seen of his dark side came at the end of "Primal Fear," and in "American History X" Norton shows he can follow through; his intense eyes convey more than most actors' entire bodies.

It is Furlong, though, who carries the film. His faltering adolescent — drifting toward the dark side — is a study in torn loyalties. His performance is subtle, genuine and, ultimately, heartfelt.

Brooks ("Star Trek: Deep Space Nine") is an accomplished and intense performer, and his turn as the principal struggling for two souls anchors the story. But myriad smaller roles make "American History X" even stronger.

Beverly D'Angelo shows nice depth as the frail widow Doris Vinyard. Jennifer Lien is memorable as the boys' sister, Davin, and Ethan Suplee is intimidating as Seth, the giant neo-Nazi who idolizes Derek. Keach, of course, is great as usual. His age-mottled racist conveys both regular-guy normalcy and on-the-edge lunacy. And Elliott Gould makes a welcome appearance as a Jewish teacher who tries to date Doris, with disastrous results.

There is, however, one nagging narrative gap: Derek seems to have converted too easily. Yes, Sweeney's pull is strong, and yes, prison can be a persuader, but to see Derek grapple with it more would have rung truer.

The editing, despite the director's objections, is impressive. Transitions between past and present, color and black-and-white, are seamless and explore the roots of Derek's hate. Sometimes the flashbacks are longer than the "present" — an engaging narrative weave that lends unease, but rarely confusion, to the film.

Politically, "American History X," with its well-executed links between subtle and overt racism, is a racial polemic. Artistically, it's a film to remember.

"American History X," a New Line Cinema release of a Truman-Morrissey Co. production, is produced by Jon Hess and David McKenna from McKenna's script.
